

Berni Tyler

I took up the post of Head of the B-wbl (Pembrokeshire College) work based learning consortium in November 2017. The consortium is made up of colleges and independent training providers delivering apprenticeships and traineeships to learners across south east and south west Wales. Prior to this I have worked in education in Wales for over twenty years. I came to Wales in 1998 to be Head of Department at Pembrokeshire College where I later progressed to senior tutor for A levels and then to curriculum manager for the whole college. Whilst at the college I achieved my MA in education leadership and management. I worked for the WJEC on a secondment to write the foundation Welsh baccalaureate and this gave me the opportunity to travel all over Wales and work with a range of schools and colleges. After this, I secured the role of Director of Quality at Colleges Wales. In 2011 I moved into work based learning as Operations Manager at ISA training and became Managing Director there in 2013. I am now Director of the WBL Consortium, Pembrokeshire.
